DOST Accelerated S&T Human Resource Development Program

Scholar's Thesis/Dissertation Progress Report

for the 1st 2nd 3rd 4th Quarter / Year 2013

THESIS/DISSERTATION TITLE:

Testing and Robust Estimation of Time Series Models with Volatility

GRANTEE: WENDELL Q. CAMPANO	DEGREE PROGRAM: PhD in Statistics
---------------------------------------	---

DURATION:

DATE STARTED: 1st sem AY 2012-2013	EXPECTED DATE OF COMPLETION: 2nd sem AY 2014-2015
--	---

OBJECTIVES:

The main objectives are (1) to develop a nonparametric method to determine and formally test the occurrences of persistent volatility or structural change in time series data and (2) to be able to estimate the true data generating process of the time series. The proposed method can be used in modeling any time series data. For example, it can be applied in determining anomaly in climate data and aid in assessing the impact of climate change on health.

SCHEDULE OF ACTIVITIES:

May - June 2014 Comprehensive exam
1st sem AY 2014-2015 Proposal defense
2nd sem AY 2014-2015 Final Defense

RESULTS AND DISCUSSION:

simulation studies exhibited high power of the test procedure when the proportion of segments of local volatility is relatively small. When there is a high proportion of local volatility in the data, increasing the number of test segments can improve performance of the algorithm as long as there are enough time points w/i each segments for model estimation. In general, the method can address the issue of poor prediction among ^{wrong} volatility models in the literature.

PROBLEMS ENCOUNTERED/PROPOSED SOLUTIONS:

Some issues not yet resolved are (1) consistency of the bootstrap method (2) optimal block length and (3) range of proportion of persistent volatility that the proposed method can still outperform conventional modeling approach. (1) can be established by theoretical properties of bootstrap methods, (2) for (2), I am still establishing useful explorators like the one used by Politis and White (2003) in determining optimal block length. For (3), more simulation studies can help.

CAREER PLANS

b1) Briefly discuss your proposed research areas

I am planning to explore and study the theoretical foundation of my MS thesis entitled "An Estimation Procedure of an SEM model in the presence of structural change". I have already established that the method works through simulated data. And I have presented it already in IASC 2008 in Japan. ~~by~~ I believe that I can also prove ~~its~~ its theoretical foundation in my PhD.

b2) Future Plans (After Graduation)

right now, I am convinced that my calling is to serve my country through teaching in the govt. academe and through research. I do not have plans of ~~to~~ leaving the country for the sake of my own career advancement. Instead, I would like to offer my skills to God and the Filipino people. After all, the latter subsidized most of my financial needs for my education. When I get my PhD degree, my immediate concern is to create user-friendly programs that would incorporate computer-intensive statistical procedures that we have developed at the school. Usually, these methods are difficult to implement particularly to those who are not computer programmers. Thus my goal is to combine our research and easy implementation of new methods developed in it. I strongly ~~also~~ believe that these will contribute much in uplifting our country in the field of statistics.
